About This Game

Riot in space... The committee of intergalactic travel decided to build a new star route, Star Route 66. At first the kingdom of Flee was happy to get connected to the gigantic network connecting the whole galaxy. The small empire would grow strong again and nobody can refuse the wealth that usually comes with a star route connection. After completion and a few accidents it turned out that flying one of the smaller Flee space discs on an intergalactic travel route is a dangerous game. Because of their small size the discs cannot be detected by the sensors of most star route travellers. The Flee uprising started when a member of the Fleeish royal house crashed into a spaceship truck. Since then Flees have tried to block the route. Encouraged by the royal house some of the space pirates joined in to fight the brave spaceship truckers just trying to make a delivery on time.

Spaceship Trucker is a 2D shooter. You are a spaceship trucker travelling down the dangerous star route. The Flees will try to block your way through space and pirates want to steal your precious cargo. Watch out for meteors as well. In each level you'll have to prove yourself worthy of being a spaceship trucker by fighting off dangerous boss enemies.

Good luck to you, brave spaceship trucker.

Thought maybe everyone in the comments was just casual, but this is stupidly hard. Will definitely be playing this for a long time. If dwarf fortress was an exploration platformer it would be called rain world.

Like this is beyond brutal. The game's monsters and environment will mercilessly \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665 you up over and over again until you start to learn it, then you learn but still get \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665ed over because you don't know\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665yet kid. Then you'll go boldly flinging spears at your predators, and as adrenaline rushes your veins they fall one by one, they bleed out. And then a vulture sweeps in from the air yanks your squishy body from the screen...

But after the 50th of try... you you became one with mother nature (except this nature is like an aborted alien eco experiment gone wrong) you backflip and leap across the screen barely evading their jaws. then when a route is blocked by overwhelming odds you know instantly where you can bypass them through secret tunnels, or you where to get items to even the fight, eat a mushroom to slow down time and matrix your way across dozens of scavengers, or throw a bomb to blow up a pack of lizards out of your way.

You'll gain knowledge about the world around you, you'll know each predators behavior and their weaknesses, you'll find epic lore about an ancient civilization long gone, and you'll have a chance to meet godlike characters giving you guidance.. This game is phenomenal for singleplayer and multiplayer. The combat is fun and simple, while the controls are easy to learn. The simplicity of it coupled with the replayability is astounding. You should definitely pick this up, especially while it is on sale for $.99.. its a good box game! puzzles and stuff. It's addictive and I don't know why. It expends the minutes you usually waste procrastinating. Perhaps not worth the tenner it's advertised at (I bought it in a Humble Bundle for pennies), but has plenty of measure for progress as well as ends up limitless in the umpteen dozens of levels and types of game to do. Easily recommend in the event of a good discount.. It's your pretty standard Chibi scenario. The vast majority of games in the ROTK series have it. The only thing is, why did this have to be paid DLC (even though it was free for people who bought it during the early discount)?

If you got it for free, additional scenarios don't hurt. If you aren't a fan of Cao Cao, this might not be the best use of your money. But if you want a tough challenge with the Sun or Liu families, I suppose this scenario works.. Really fun game. I hope Berserk Games add the expansions one day.

Plays a lot like a board game version of FTL. You're being attacked, your ship is in tatters and the only thing that will save you is making a Jump.

The game is fully playable solo, (though you must play as multiple characters yourself) and I found it quite challenging. It required a lot of thinking and planning to get the job done, with the ship constantly in danger of destruction.

Visually the game is quite nice, though some of the text is far too small.. ==ABOUT==

In its most simplest form this game is simply about matching the flag & country name that pops up with its actual location on the globe. All the countries on the globe are denoted by borders so it is simply a matter of clicking on where it is supposed to be. Once you get them right in a level (I think around 10) you progress to the next level and build a score depending on how quick you got them and how many mistakes you make. If you didn't like the score, you simply play the level again, naturally each level gets progressively harder about guessing the right location for each country, for example your really small African and Central American countries don't pop up until many levels in whereas the Canadas, chinas etc pop up in the first couple of levels.... and that is all there is to this game.

The best and probably only good part about the game is you get to learn where the countries are, and realise how many you don't actually know plus you are learning the flags along the way. Therefore a good educational perspective. It also is not an expensive game and if it is on sale can get as cheap as chips. Its also a little addictive in trying to get the countries right each time. You can zoom in and out of the globe too and the hints are reasonably helpful (eg: Northern Africa rather than just Africa).

==WHATS NOT REALLY THAT GOOD==

The downside is that is nothing more than what is stated above, the graphics are bland and every level is identical in nature, ie: guess the location of about 10 countries then move up to the next one. If you don't get them all right and retry the level you get the same 10 countries again, just generated in a different order. There is also no exit function to close the game down so you will have to use a keyboard shortcut to close or tab to another screen. There is certainly nothing Triple A about this game.

--SUMMARY--

Its unique, different, slightly addictive and has an educational quality that I give a nod to. I bought it pretty cheaply so I have no regrets at all and sometimes its good to jump on a mindless type of guessing game for a few minutes to pass the time. I may not play it through to its conclusion (ie: all the levels) but I enjoy the concept of just having a go at guessing where the countries are on the globe. If it was a premium priced product I would be giving it the big thumbs down but under $5USD I like to see something a little off centre that is useful and hence the recommendation.

It is very interesting! The character is very kawaii!

Let's challenge together !

Come on!. Really liked this one. The story, arts, music, and gameplay are good.

The cons are: too short and kinda easy.. Why would you spent 1000's of dollars for 5 star nero on FGO when you can make her one for 1.99. i hoping for more new update like new trains, new stuff and other new thing. Very nice expansion, would highly recommend buying, hope the developers continue supporting this game, it is amazing for such an old game to have such nice expansions, with a few bug fixes this game will be perfect but that will come as time goes on.. Loved it! retro through and through

Great for Speedrunners, and also great for people like me, who enjoys casual gaming :D loved it!
